Summary Report

Subject : Stress Management

Class: I B.Com , I B.Com (CA), I BBA

Batch:2020-2021

Date : 08.12.2021

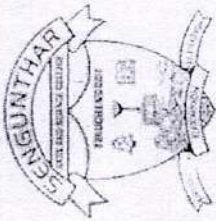

Stress management is major and key issues during the emergency period. Stress can be successfully managed if a manager self is managed first and it is better to make a plan for prevention and mitigation of different types of crisis. A solid understanding of roles and responsibilities, support for colleagues, good self-care, and seeking help when needed is very much important for managing the stress during crisis time.

An optimum level of stress can act as a creative, motivational force that drives a person to achieve the desired goals and objectives. If stress is extreme and not managed, some individuals may experience posttraumatic stress disorder (PTSD). Crisis managers are always in a state of physical and emotional fatigue, during the time of crisis management and some time they are unaware about the level of stress that they are bearing in their own life. It is important to give time for self and to the other in a managed way so that crisis managers could handle the situation effectively.
